

The Tiger Roars For 1919-'20

A ROAR FROM THE HILLS DOPED TO COVER THE SOUTH

Just after the close of the baseball season the following message was received in Donahue's camp:

The World Everyday.

To Loyal Tigers.

Fellows, we are looking at you and we expect great things from you and your team during the next inter-collegiate athletic season. We understand that the old spirit of former years is back to help you win. Go to it, and give 'em hell.

Signed,

Tigers of Days Gone By.

And that is just what the Tigers of 1919-1920 expect to do. As far as dope goes the old Tiger of former years has awakened from his slumbers, and his hunger from his long hibernation is one that can be filled only by the blood of the leading teams in the South. The Tiger is yearning for other victories than those of the habitual victory over the Gamecocks and the Bull Dogs. Next year will see the old Tiger in his old fighting trim, with his claws well sharpened, and with his appetite for victory tuned up to the keenest. His roar, that for the past few years has been heard in his own state only, will be such that will make the so-called invincible Yellow Jacket sit up and take notice when the 1919-20 Tiger goes forth from the hills to make claims on the Southern Championship, which, in former years was his. Prospects for a winning team in every branch of intercollegiate sports is indeed bright. In former years Clemson has put out teams that have cleaned up for everything in the South, and Clemson supporters are looking at her teams to do the same thing during the coming season. Every thing that is needed in making a winning team will be on hand next season. Material, good and plenty of it, will be on hand, and a coach that has the ability of training that material is not lacking in the least, and last, but not least, is the college pep that is needed in making a winning team—and PEP is here in plenty.

In the early weeks of September, when Coach Donahue returns to Clemson to round the football team into shape, he will find plenty of material on hand, men of the same type that put Clemson on the top round of Southern athletics back in the years gone by.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES FEE.

One of the biggest problems that the Clemson Athletic Association faces is that of finance. Athletics are vital to a college's advancement, but it is necessary to have them upon a firm financial basis before they can be successful. The majority of the students have responded liberally to the support of the Athletic Association, yet there are a few who fail to realize that it is their duty to support athletics. The institution of a Student Activities Fee would be a great equalizer. Each student would pay the same amount of money to the support of the different activities, and each one would feel that he had some definite interest in all of the activities. The present members of the Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman classes have voted unanimously in favor of the fee. If the students tell their parents what this fee will mean to themselves and to the activities at large, there is no doubt but what the parents would gladly give them the necessary amount of money to pay the fee at the beginning of each session. Practically every college and university of any size in the South have a Student Activities Fee. Clemson is a big school, and why should the officers of the Athletic Association and the business managers of the different publications be continually racking their brain trying to devise some means of raising money to support their respective organizations and publications. The adoption of the Student Activities Fee would solve the problems and relieve all worry as regards finances. The fee would cover such expenses as the Athletic season ticket, subscriptions to THE TIGER, THE CHRONICLE and THE ANNUAL, and the membership to the Y. M. C. A. In summing up the charges for the above named activities, the fee would be about fifteen dollars ($15), apportioned as follows: Season Ticket to all games played on campus, $5.50; Subscription to THE TIGER, $1.50; Subscription to THE CHRONICLE, $1.50; and for one copy of the ANNUAL, $3.50, and the Y. M. C. A. membership fee, $3.00. Only the action of the Board of Trustees is necessary for Clemson to have this much desired fee. Clemson is going to grow greater, only in measure as the students are allowed the means by which they might develop their activities. There is no doubt in the minds of everybody but what every cent spent on these activities is well spent, and an important factor in developing real manhood.

DEW DROPS ENTERTAIN

On Saturday night, May 31, a number of cadets could have been seen wending their way over to the Ravenel residence.

A casual passer-by could also have heard the gentle strains of that music which is so applicable to the one-step, the fox-trot, and the dreamy waltz.

Misses Shanklin, Sease, Hare, Matthews, Elinor Ravenel, Lewis, and Henrietta Ravenel were the ladies present, the last two having just returned from Winthrop that morning. Everyone had a most joyous time, the dancing lasting until 12 M. The cadets present were E. T. Bunch, J. W. Geraty, J. P. Voight, J. V. Martin, R. E. Atkinson, J. L. Scruggs, P. L. Tollison, F. I. Perry, T. R. Simmons, K. S. Tupper, H. B. Robinson, G. Hartzell, S. B. Ravenel, C. L. Boylston, J. P. Kinard, and E. L. Manigault.

HAYNE SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS.

At the last meeting of the Hayne Literary Society the following officers were elected to serve for the first term of '19-'20:

R. R. Shedd, President.
J. W. Allison, Vice-President.
T. L. McMeekin, Secretary.
M. C. Smith, Treasurer.
W. S. Bishop, Prosecuting Critic.
J. M. Gandy, Literary Critic.
W. L. Mabry, Chaplain.

CLASS "FEED" COMES OFF IN GRAND STYLE

The night of May 23, will long be remembered by the classes of '19 and '20, for the annual banquet which is customarily given to the seniors was held on this occasion.

At about eight o'clock, every Senior and Junior who had one spark of life in him wended his way toward the front of main building. Those who were so fortunate as to be accompanied by a lady made their way into the hall of the building and chatted gaily with the fairer sex.

Very soon, the long procession could be seen moving toward the place of mutual attraction, the cadets with their beautiful partners in the lead, and the unfortunates bringing up the rear.

Upon reaching the banquet hall, a wonderful sight met the eye. The tasteful manner in which the decorations were arranged was unsurpassed. Flowers innumerable, potted plants, and gay-colored draperies blended beautifully.

The sound of sweet music filled the air, and that unexpressible feeling of joy was strong in everyone.

The address of welcome was delivered by Mr. Roper, the president of the Junior class, and then the banquet was begun. Truly, a feast fit for a king was spread upon the festive board. The following extensive menu was:

Mayonaise Salad	Pickles
Sliced Tomatoes	Tea
Chicken Salad	Turkey
Ham	Chicken
Creamed Potatoes	Green peas
Rice	Fruit
Ice Cream	Cigars

After all had partaken copiously of the bounteous repast, the Toast-master, Mr. Davis was called upon. He held his auditors with his ready wit, and called upon President Earle to deliver a short address. The speaker, in his short talk, expressed his delight at being at the banquet, and also his regret that he had not been placed between two lovely ladies instead of between Dr. Calhoun and Mr. Davis. Mr. Davis then called upon Dr. Calhoun to take his turn "on the stump." With the rise of the "c." there was fable, fiction, and fun. He kept the assembly in an uproar by his marvelous revelations and insinuations, and a regret was felt by everyone when he took his seat. Mr. Bankhead, president of the Senior class, then expressed his appreciation, and that of his classmates, to the class of '20 for the reception and for the hearty cooperation which they had always shown the class of '19. In closing, he wished the rising Seniors much success in their work.

Mr. Roper then closed the proceedings of the night with a short farewell address.

The members of the dancing club left for the dance hall, while the other cadets found their way back to barracks to dream of the recent past.

ATKINSON LEADS DONAHUE'S SLUGGERS

In the final round-up of the Tigers batters, it was found that all dope was destined to be upset and that "Lefty" Atkinson, the hard hitting pitcher and outfielder, was not only leading the list, but that he outdistanced his nearest opponent by a total of eighty-five points. Bankhead, Poe, and Richbourg made a close race for second place, but none of them was able to reach the three hundred mark. As a whole the Tigers had a poor season with the stick, losing many games when only a single would have meant runs.

The following are the averages:

	Games Played	Hits	P. C.
Atkinson	18	24	.384
Bankhead	22	23	.299
Poe	22	20	.260
Richbourg	21	17	.255
Banks	22	18	.234
Jordan	22	17	.228
Thrower	15	8	.224
Harris	22	11	.154
Woodward	20	10	.140
Garrison	4	1	.125
Bethea	7	1	.100
Robinson	4	0	.000
Lowman	8	0	.000
Boozer	7	0	.000

THE TIGER'S DOMICILE

FRESHMEN WINNERS IN CLASS BASEBALL

The Freshmen put out a good team and won all games except one. A little hard luck helped the Juniors and this game ended in a tie. Sweetenberg did some fine pitching and his twirling was one of the main things that helped put the "Rat" class on top.

The standing of the classes are as follows:

	Won	Lost	P. C.
Freshmen	5	0	1000
Senior	3	3	500
Sophomore	2	4	333
Junior	1	4	200

ALL CLASS BASEBALL TEAM SELECTED

The Tigers selection of an all-class team is published below. The teams represented were not as evenly matched as is generally the case. The pick for all-class should be the entire Freshmen nine, as they were the ones to clean up for every thing on the field. In the pick, Bethea for catcher outshone the other mask-men. Sweetenberg, the selection for pitcher, was undoubtedly the best slabsman on the field. For positions on the rest of the team a selection was difficult.

EDITORIAL.

JUST A LINE BEFORE WE CLOSE.

To the old editor of THE TIGER the College weekly has meant everything in the world. We have enjoyed the task of editing the task of editing the paper as we have never enjoyed anything before. Your criticisms—open as they were—were all the more appreciated, because they were open. It is with regret and sadness that the old staff turns over its work to the new, and yet it is with a feeling of gladness when we review the new staff. We look with humble pride upon THE TIGER of the past year. It has felt the inconveniences of war; it has suffered from the inexperience of an untrained staff; it has seen a hard time, and yet it has always striven to maintain the spirit and high ideals of the Clemson corps and to ever instill into the great Tiger heart a longing—a longing which brings results, sooner or later—for all that is best in man and in college. It hopes to have stirred a spirit which will manifest itself undaunted on Tech's football field and which will clean up the South in every athletic meet. If THE TIGER has done anything to make Clemson better than the kicks and hardships of a retiring staff have caused no ill effect.

We hope not to have said anything which might have caused an ill feeling to exist where one did not exist before, rather that we could have obliterated some of the indifferences which, perhaps, exist. We trust that no feelings have been hurt, that no injustice has been done, and that no grievances have been raised. In all that we have said there was a hope, a desire for something better. We tried to be constructive, to speak for what was, in the sincere conviction of a mass of students, right and just. If anything we have said has been otherwise interpreted we beg you to reconsider your interpretation, and if any injustice has been done anyone we beg a humble pardon and complete forgiveness, because we were entirely ignorant of a mistake at the time of any offence.

To the new staff, we extend our whole-hearted wishes for success and urge that the Corps give THE TIGER its unrestrained and undivided support for HE ROARS FOR CLEMSON.

"THINK"

The darkest hour in any college man's career is when he sits down to plan how he can get a pass without actually working for it. Right then he is entwining his future with cobwebs that will afterwards become like iron bands. What the average college man lacks is not talent, but a high purpose—not the actual ability, but the will to work and to work hard. So long as he must fight, the man with a purpose pushes forward, but how frequently is the overcome by a desire not to excel, to be at ease, and to take things just as they come. Of all faults, that which is most common is indolence. How often is it the cause of serious vices, those which may question even honor itself.

Take all the men who have failed since creation; observe all the causes of their failure; and though there be ten or ten million, not one is proof of your failure. Every man is master of his own destiny.

Commencement will soon be over and all of us will leave Clemson to spend our summer vacation in one way or another. We expect to have a good time as a sort of reward for our labors of the past year. But whether our work is praiseworthy or not, it does not give us the right to loaf all summer. We all know that a loafer lives on some one else, and if he has a good time some one pays for it. None of us want to be parasites, so let's find something to do this summer. Any college student can find a job, and he doesn't have to go west to find it either. Most of us will try anything once. Well, let's try having a good time on money that we have earned ourselves and then we won't be classed as lead-beats. This has worked successfully for those who have tried it. Why not for us. Any man would rather be a worker rather than a drone and idler.

Here we are at the end of another session. Class '19 is leaving us. Many sad, good-byes are being said. The future looks bright to them as they leave their Alma Mater and go forth to battle the world in their fight for SUCCESS. They are leaving us with the firm determination to do their best and to hold the standards of Clemson on high. Never will they be found below the mark that our men have set as their aim in life. They are preparing to pass in review before the whole world, therefore their lines will be straight and firm. Each man will do his part to keep the Purple and Gold on high. They are true Clemson men.

We who are left at the College to continue our preparation for the battles which the Class of '19 are now about to encounter shall do our best to keep the old Tiger spirit going strong. The honor and ideals of Clemson are in our hands. We CANNOT let them fall. We WILL not. Class '20, at the head of the column, will ever lead the Corps to do the right and proper things. That "eat-em-up Tiger" spirit will ever burn in the breasts of true Clemson men whether they be students or alumni. The grand old spirit of "never say die, but do it or bust" will always be the inspiration for a loyal Tiger. Next year means a lot to us. We are out for EVERY TOP PLACE POSSIBLE and what's more WE ARE GOING TO GET EVERYTHING WE GO AFTER. Our past is grand, but our future has brighter prospects than ever.

Purple and Gold, we love you. Alma Mater, you are sacred to us. Ever let us be true Clemson men. Let us be true Tigers to the bone.

A BIG YEAR AHEAD.

Time is the most valuable thing in the world; for given it, all of the truly great things may be realized, while without it all things become imaginary. Many supercede the value of time by that of wealth, fame, or character. Wealth, as it often does, may take wings and fly away. Fame, however glorious, is always attended by an unwieldy ambition; and is often followed by a drop into the bottomless pit of oblivion. True it is that character is very valuable, but however misdirected or out of shape it may be restored by sufficient effort. Time once lost though is lost forever, and neither wealth, repentance, nor any effort can atone for its loss.

Time, unlike most things, is portioned out to the average man in just measure; "three score and ten" is the usual heritage. It is the one thing that is always directly ahead of us—to use wisely and well, or to squander in idleness and vice; but never behind us. For once past, it is worthless, useless, without existence.

What is your feeling toward time? Do you regard it as your greatest asset? Then carefully use every moment of it, and in such a way that it will be of most value to you. Of all time, that part of it is recognized to be most valuable which is spent in college. It is the period in which ideals are set and characters are molded. We have a beaming year ahead of us—the session of '19-'20. Let's make it count.

WHAT CLEMSON OFFERS.

Clemson is primarily a technical school. Its object is to fit men so that they may be better able to cope with the problems confronting the average man. The courses here give a foundation in practically all elementary scientific subjects, but omit those of a highly classical nature. The days when monks, like Simeon Stylites dwelt for thirty years on the narrow top of a lofty column, when scholars debated for days as to how many angels might stand on the point of a needle, and when noblemen had time to read endless volumes of meaningless theories, are passed; we are living in a practical age, when the man who accomplishes the most useful purpose in the shortest time is considered the greatest success.

Clemson by no means discards theories or literary works from her courses. The curriculum rather holds in delicate balance theory and practice, giving only that part of each that is of direct scientific or economic value. The literary requirements are such as to make the students appreciative of good literature, and amply conversant with literary personages of the day.

Clemson also offers to the students many advantages outside of the class-room. In all phases of athletics she holds a place in the sun. Her foot-ball eleven are a bunch that always make other teams tremble with fear—nor should they be censured for trembling. The advantages of literary societies, Y. M. C. A., vast library, military training, scientific societies, and other college activities, besides a large and high minded corps, should be factors for the prospective college man to consider. These are all realized to a greater extent at Clemson than elsewhere in the state.

LET'S GET BEHIND THE TIGER.

It is very easy to say—"THE TIGER is going to be a success next year"—but did you ever stop to think that is you who is going to make it a success.

THE TIGER staff is made up of men who are going to work. They are going to give to you, and for you everything that they have got in them. Yes! THE TIGER is going to be a success—that is assured, but you men of Clemson make up and let us make our College paper; not the best in the state, it is already the best; but the best in the South. To accomplish this great and glorious task THE TIGER must have first of all—your financial support. You perhaps answer this statement with these words, "I subscribe to THE TIGER—what more can I do?" You can do a lot more toward helping the financial condition of our paper, besides subscribing to it. You may ask, "How?"

Then I will tell you how to make THE TIGER the pride of every Clemson man. I have told you that we have one of the best staffs ever assembled to put out our only source by which we can answer the state papers to uphold our honor. I have also told you that you must do more than subscribe to the paper yourself. When you go home this summer tell your brother, your sister, your father, your mother, that if they want to know what you are doing at Clemson—to subscribe to THE TIGER. One dollar and fifty cents is not much, and just think what a big help it will be to bring back at least one new subscriber. It will almost mean twice as large an issue as we now have, and over twice as many copies. The merits of any publication is rated by the number of readers it has, and the advertising space will also be more beneficial both to the advertisers and to THE TIGER. The folks at home won't miss the price, but will welcome the weekly newsy messenger. I intend to bring back at least one new subscriber, thus enjoy the satisfaction of having done my bit for my college paper, for my college, and for myself. Will you do that much toward upbuilding our deserving publication?

M. S. S., '21.

P. S.—That's true College spirit.—Editor.

FAREWELL

Farewell, farewell is a mournful sound,
And it always brings a sigh.
But give to me when loved ones part
That sweet old word—GOODBYE

We have come to the end of the day. Our College year is fast dying—soon it will be dead. It is with genuine regret that we must bid a fond farewell; but the time has come when we must tell teachers and classmates adieu. We have had many trials and temptations; often we have crossed views with those in authority, but everything passed off; and our College life still retains its charm.

But let me impress upon you the necessity of holding high above you our Alma Mater. You must remember that Clemson is first, last and always above 'em all. And when you go out into the world, or if you go to your homes convey with you, and repeat often those stirring lines, that were written by A. C. Corcoran of the Class '19. It is indeed with pride that Clemson men can boast of such an Alma Mater.

As the sun arose above the Blue Ridge mountains at the beginning of the year we started upon a very eventful session. The S. A. T. C. made a deep hole in our ranks. The call of duty took many of our boys to the colors; but soon college life was again in full swing, and class work again resumed with renewed vigor. We put in double time, and as the golden sun descends toward the western skies, we feel that we have lived a year well spent.

Our teachers, we must bid farewell. To our classmates good-bye, good luck, God bless you, is all that we can say.

Y. M. C. A.

You will be leaving the school for vacation shortly, but the Y. M. C. A. will be on the job all the summer and will make life for the men taking the summer courses. Vesper services will be held on steps of the Agricultural Hall every Sunday evening.

Plans are being laid for next session for the biggest year of Y. M. C. A. work that Clemson has ever experienced. Every effort is being made to get Holtzendorff back as General Secretary and present indications are that he will take the helm for 1919-20. Following is the Cabinet of the Y. M. C. A. for the coming year: R. F. Kolb, president; L. K. Boggs, vice-president; E. F. Gettys, recording-secretary; J. A. Henry, Bible study; O. E. Baker, missions; M. C. Jeter, conferences; W. H. Ramsey, publications; O. F. Covington, new students; G. B. Patrick, membership; D. K. Summers, assistant Bible study chairman.

Off for Blue Ridge.

On the morning of June 13th around twenty men leave for Blue Ridge for the "biggest ten days of a college man's life." On Tuesday night a get-together meeting of these men was held, and together with a few "Glory to Old Clemson's," "What makes the Wild Cat Wild," Alma Maters, and a liberal spread of ice cream, at which "Red" Gettys held up his reputation, a small sample of real Blue Ridge spirit was created. The faculty has agreed to give the men early examinations and excuse them from commencement so that they may leave Clemson in time for the opening of the conference. Following is a list of the men who will represent Clemson at the conference: D. K. Summers, R. F. Kolb, O. F. Covington, G. H. Aull, J. J. Wolfe, M. C. Jeter, W. S. McDonald, F. U. Wolfe, J. M. Black, W. H. Ramsey, O. B. Mills, G. F. Ricker, M. J. Black, J. C. Bell, G. C. Martin, W. H. Bryant, L. K. Boggs, L. W. Dick, and J. O. Covin.

Things to Take With You to Blue Ridge

The degree of preparation you make for the conference will largely determine the amount of good and pleasure that will come to you. Try to carry the following: Baseball uniform, baseball mitt or glove (baseballs will be furnished by the conference, tennis balls may be purchased at Blue Ridge) tennis racquet, trousers and shoes, basket ball suit, bathing suit, hiking shoes and clothes, sweater, rain coat, your kodak, plenty of films, all the college pennants and banners you have, your college annual, a good note book, fountain pen and the determination to get everything out of the conference there is for you.

"THE LAST HOOT."

By "The Owl."

Well, I suppose that you Rats think that you have made your last bed and have carried your last bucket of water. Well you have—for an upperclassman, but not for—well look at the Graduating Class. See that tall stalwart fellow over there. Yes, that's Mr. Dantzler D. Bodie. Why, he's engaged now. Now look over there on your right. There is the famous Parlor Lizard, Major "Mouse" Elliot. "Mouse" is the original Gentleman Vampire. He has more ladies running after him than Bluebeard had wives. Now see that meek, poetic looking fellow over yonder. Yes, that's "Allie." He tried to prove that Poetry was a better weapon in love than mathematics, but all of his experiments and observations were in vain. He finally found a maid of literary tastes. Duggan will make some good girl a husband. Quattlebaum and McCord are both in the throes of Practical Matrimony. All the rest of the class, except "Arab" Burly and "Load" Snields, are in the grasp of Cupid, so my dear Freshmen, take heed. Look upon these bright young lads being led to the slaughter, a smile on their faces. They do not see the path before them. They only think that they have made their last bed up and have carried their last bucket of water. Ah! Dear Rats, they are only on the threshold of such as that. The Owl can see many a poorly fried steak, many a hard biscuit, and just lots brooms, pans, et cetera, waiting on these fair young lads. Far better would it have been had such as "Pete" Harper and "Pints" Cornwell taken a course in Domestic Science than a Scientific course as they have taken.

Oh! Class of '19. Thy future is black with Kitchen soot and shoe polish. Beware! Beware! ! !

PALMETTO SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS.

At a short meeting of the Palmetto Literary Society, held last Thursday evening, the following officers were elected to serve for the first quarter of the session of '19-'20:

President—G. B. Patrick.
Vice-President—R. M. Barnette.
Secretary—C. B. Loftis.
Prosecuting Critic—M. B. Woodward.
Treasurer—D. M. Altman.
Reporting Critics—J. E. Garvin, W. B. Stevenson, T. D. Truluck, A. L. Durrant.
Censor—C. A. Mitchell.
Literary Critic—E. F. Farmer.

ALUMNI NOTES

Mr. T. R. Vogel, '98 is Assistant Engineer in charge Marine Drafting Division, office of the chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C.

Among the applicants for next session are two Clemson "Grandsons," P. H. Gooding, Jr., and Richard Vogel.

Data compiled in 1918 showed that one-fourth of the studentbody had brothers to precede them here.

J. N. Goldsmith, special Textile '13-14, died in an officers Training school last November. This adds another gold star to the service flag.

During the past year thirteen Clemson men were teaching agriculture in the high schools throughout the state. These men are pioneers in this state under the new state and federal laws regarding vocational training.

"Joe Fish" Herring, '18, was over for the Junior-Senior dance on May 23, "Fish" is in the dairying business at Spartanburg, S. C. Ensign A. H. McMeekin '18, was at home on furlough last week.

D. T. Duncan '16, was a visitor on the campus a few days ago. "Governor," has obtained his degree in Civil Engineering at Cornell since he left us; besides, he has won a commission as Ensign and has been across five times.

J. M. Craig '17, called around to see us for a few hours last week.

Lt. C. G. Harris '17, was a visitor on the campus last week. Harris was severely wounded in France, and has been at General Hospital No. 6, Fort McPherson Ga., for some time. He also posses three distinguished medals for bravery shown on the battle fields of France.

Major A. V. Kooks '07, who has been overseas eighteen months with the 117th Engineers, "Rainbow Division," received his discharge recently, and at present has the position of Resident Engineer with the Southern Railway Co., his headquarters being in Charlotte, N. C.

Lt. L. G. Hardin '17, was at his home a few days ago on furlough, "Annie" served eight months in France as an aviator.

E. G. Kittles '15, was a visitor on the campus last week.

Lt. H. C. Worthy '17, was at his home in Chester County a few days ago.

Tom Spratt '17, attended the Junior-Senior dance which was held on May 23. Tom has only been back from Germany a short while.

F. S. Hoefler '18, is back with us now as assistant to Prof. Rhodes in the Electrical laboratory.

Prof. Doggett has received a letter from Capt. W. J. Hunter, an old Tiger, who is with the 323 Inf. A. E. F. in England.

J. R. Morgan, '14, is a captain in the 76th Division A. E. F. He is the only captain in his regiment not to be killed or wounded.

"Roy John" Ellison, '18, is working with the Goose Creek Oil Company, Goose Creek, Texas.

W. M. Blackwell, Ex-'19, is an ensign in Naval Air Craft, stationed at Pensacola. He was on the campus Monday, stopping over on his way to Washington.

It is reported that Chas. Allan Willcox, Ex-'19, is on the verge of marriage. We hope he does not lost his head.

Success is the idol that all the world worships; therefore, most men desire the glory of success more than all its other rewards, and dread the disgrace of failure more than all its other losses.

LOCALS.

Rev. Mr. Ellis, of the Clemson College Baptist church, has just returned from a tour thru Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland, during which he made commencement addresses at Dividing Creek, N. J., and at Pocomoke, Md., also a similar address at Orangeburg High School on his return to this state. During this time Mr. Ellis attended the closing exercises of Crozer Theological Seminary from which Institution he received another degree for work which he did at his home this year. This speaks high for the Baptist minister and his work.

Dr. Guy F. Lipscomb, royally entertained the Junior and Senior Chemical students at his home on last Saturday evening.

WHEN?—

When Brown gets his spurs on
And "Varsity" gets a shave:
When "Bill" forgets his demijohn
And "Major" let's 'em rave;
When "Booker" draws his 'line' in,
And Bodie pulls the string;
When "Daddy" quits his chewin'
And Rivers learns to sing;
When "Sheeba" cools his dander down,
And "Early" gets his leggins on;—

Then I make the move we meet
In some good old-fashion town,
And hold a great big 'union
For the men who've "settled down."

DR. LEE AND MAJOR TURNBULL OPEN OFFICE IN CHARLOTTE

It is of interest to the Architectural students, as well as to the rest of the Corps to know that Dr. R. E. Lee, our College architect, and Major A. R. Turnbull, our assistant Commandant of last year, has formed a partnership with Mr. T. A. McEwan, of Charlotte, and have opened offices in that city. The firm goes by the name of Lee, McEwan & Turnbull. All of these men have been in the services of their countries in one capacity or another. We wish the firm success.

TRACK TEAM ELECTS A CAPTAIN

The track team held a meeting a few days ago and elected for their captain L. K. Boggs, a coming Senior.

Clemson showed up fine in track this year, winning the state championship and taking fifth place in the meet with other colleges of the South at Atlanta. Big things are expected from the Tigers next year in this line of athletics.

CALHOUN SOCIETY.

The Calhoun society held its weekly meeting Friday, May 30, 1919. This was the last meeting of the year, and after a few business discussions; the regular program was omitted, and the night was turned over to the Seniors. The Seniors made short and appropriate little speeches. Much advice, and timely hints were given to us by we expect to profit next year.

At the Senior Class meeting of last week, a motion was made and carried that the members of the class of 1919, sign over notes payable yearly for five to ten years; the sum of five to ten dollars per year; the said money to go to support inter-collegiate athletics at Clemson. From the amount would be turned over to the editor of THE TIGER the subscription price of THE TIGER, thereby giving the members of the class a closer connection with affairs at Clemson.

Soph: Come here Rat, you scored on me.
Rat: Please, please, I'll do anything for you.

Soph: Alright, get over.

Prof. Smith in lecture: The blind ants go along in single file, following directly in the tracks of the leader.

Miss S.: Well, why do the seeing ants do the same thing.

Prof. Smith: The leader probably studied geometry and found that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points and taught it to the others.

Every man has his peculiarities. A man without peculiarities would be the most peculiar of men.

Littlenesses in great men are like specks of cloud in a clear sky. Greatnesses in little men are like gleams of sunshine on a cloudy day.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Clemson is a technical college, and the students do not get very much work in English, but we are fortunate to have six progressive literary societies that gives the necessary training which is not included in the curriculum. Membership in the societies is voluntary, and for this reason, the members are earnest workers striving to attain the accomplishments of men who are able to express themselves before the public. During this session, the societies were not organized until after Christmas; yet, despite the interruptions of the first of the session, good results have been achieved. With next session comes the return of normal times. The prospect for literary society work is encouraging, and the opening of next session beckons to each student to fall in line with the active society workers. There will be a close cooperation between the English department and the literary societies. Credits will be given by the English professors to those students who perform efficient work in the societies. The worth of a literary society training cannot be valued too highly. This is an age when men must think, and think quickly. The future holds wonderful things in store for the college trained man, and it is in the literary society hall that he learns to express his thoughts in a distinct and forceful manner. Any one who cannot present his ideas to others in a clear, convincing way is going to be handicapped throughout life. Thus, the importance of a literary society trainings is clearly seen. The literary societies of Clemson are the most important asset to the college cause. Any of the alumni will tell the present students that the training which has been received in the literary societies has helped them to make good in their respective vocations. Although a purely technical school, Clemson ranks among the truly literary colleges of the state. The success of the society work has put Clemson where she is in the literary realm of the state. The college must keep and raise her literary standard, and in order to stay at the top, each student must perform his duty faithfully and efficiently. Let each member's energy and great will be the results. overflowing.

THE TIGERS OF 1919-1920.

Most of last seasons squad will be back, also a great many Tigers who have been helping their Uncle whip the Kaiser. The first man back at Clemson in the fall, will, in all probability, be "Stumpy" Banks, captain of this years team, and a player of Southern fame. For the life of him, "Stumpy" could not be idle while the thud of the pig skin is being heard through the country. "Switzer" Allison, the bulky full-back, will be back to hit that old line. Armstrong, the speedy half, will be on hand when the whistle blows. "Red" Frew, the Tiger quarter-back of state-wide fame, will return to Clemson to run the team to victory. O'dell is another back field man who will return to Clemson in the fall. In the line, "Noisy" Kay will return to make that all-southern place on end. Lightsey, Potts, Gilmer, Thackston, Padgett and Hammet, all old Tigers of fame, will be there to help put Clemson back where she belongs.

To help these old warriors of the gridiron both on the field and in preparation, will be such men as MacKensie, Bunch, Moore, Randle, Gettys, Shanck, Poe, and Roper, besides many men of this year's Freshman class who have shown up fine, both in their playing last fall and in the class games.

As yet, little mention has been made of the men who are to handle the team that is planning and waiting for the time to come when they will have a chance to show the South that Clemson is still putting out football teams. "Stumpy" Banks has been elected captain of next season's team, and a better man to lead the team from the Hill to victory could not be found. The pepperist little coach in the South, "Jiggs" Donahue, will be on hand to train the best bunch of football material that has been to Clemson in many seasons. Clemson is indeed proud, and confident in her coach, and would not trade "Jiggs" for any foot ball coach in the country. To assist Coach Donahue, the Athletic Association has procured the services of "Country" Morris, a man who is well known in the athletic circles of Tiger-ville.

This season's baseball team is a thing of the past, but it's record will last only until the next season, when the team of next year, captained by Mr. "Jug Head" Harris, will clean up for everything in the South in such grand style that the entire baseball world will be able to talk of nothing else except the ball team from the hills of South Carolina. As manager of next years team, the corps has elected "Joe" Rivers. The Tigers are looking to "Joe," for a schedule that will put the Blue Ridge Train schedule to shame. Several of Clemson's ball players leave college this year by graduation, but those that will return to form the nucleus of next year's team are Atkinson, Boozer, Woodward, Harris, Richbourg, and Poe. Besides these players of fame, the Tigers will be represented on the diamond by such men as Bethea, Dick, Boone, Parler, Crisp, and Garrison.

"Country" Morris, one of the best baseball coaches ever at Clemson, will be in charge of next season's squad.

Clemson's track team of this year made a name for itself, and the supporters of Clemson athletics are looking forward to greater things from their track team of next season. The team of this year coached itself, and had to practically beg for meets in order to show it's ability. But next season the association hopes to be in a position to be able to obtain a coach for the team, and Covington, manager of next years team, promises a good schedule. The team of this season started training without a single letter man to form a team around, but the good work of the Tigers on track this season made quite a number of letter men for next year's team. Already the team is looking forward to the two annual meets, one the annual S. I. A. A. meet, and the other, the annual meet held on Grant's Field, in Atlanta. Lack of experience proved fatal to Clemson in this year's meet in Atlanta, but, with such men as Carter, Covington, Boggs, Going, Young, Saunders, Gower, Smith, and Voight back on the field, Clemson could not help but put out a team that will do justice to their Alma Mater, especially if next year's Freshman class brings in as fine a bunch of track material as it's predecessor did.

Influenza cut this season's basket ball schedule short, but for next year, Manager Going promises a schedule that will include many of the best quints in the South. The team loses Robinson, one of the best basketball players in the state, by graduation. But the men of this years squad who will return to Clemson next fall are: Going, Schanck, Poe, Schirmer, Covington, and others.

For the first time in the history of the institution, a swimming team was started at Clemson this winter. Interest in this branch of college sport progressed to such extent that the association has decided to make swimming a regular branch of College athletics. Covington has been elected to captain next year's team, and "Booby" Schwettmann, the temporary manager of this season's ducks, was elected to manage the team of next season. The men of this year's team who will be back to represent Clemson on the water will be Schirmer, Covington, Geraty, Robinson, Muckenfus.

For the past two seasons Clemson failed to put out a tennis team, but next year, with such a man as Fitzgerald at managerial throttle, the Tigers may well look forward to a tennis team that will do honor to the institution.

NOTE:—Since this article was written, it has been rumored that two more foot ball players other than those previously mentioned, will return to Clemson and fight for the honor of the Purple and Gold. One of these men is "Bill" Harris, a gridiron hero of anti-bellum days; the other Tiger is Reams, a backfield man of unusual ability. The entire cadet corps is hoping that this rumor will materialize, and that next fall these two warriors will be wearing the uniform of the best football team in the South.

P. S.—(By the Editor):—With "Spot" Voight pushing the pen on Athletic Reporter's pad, all loyal Tigers will be able to read the true, full and comprehensive accounts of all our battles, written by a TRUE CLEMSON MAN.

COLUMBIAN SOCIETY MEETS.

The last meeting of the Columbian Literary Society for this session was held on May 30, 1919. After the installation of the new officers for next year, each senior member gave a farewell address. Many new members were received into the society. The new officers, with the hearty co-operation of the members, promise to make next year one which is full of "pep" and good work.

TO THE ALUMNI.

This is just a gentle reminder that THE TIGER will be out next year in full force. We are looking for as many Alumni subscriptions as possible. If you still have that old "Eat-em-up, Tiger" spirit, just mail the Editor-in-chief a dollar and a half and you will receive THE TIGER for the year. All the big Tiger victories of next year will be brought before your eyes in this way. Send the cash or a check, soap wrappers not accepted. What do you say, old Tigers?

She (to street car conductor): "f I touch that trolley wire with my hand will it shock me?"

Conductor: No, but if you put one foot up there and keep the other on the ground, the whole town will be shocked.
